Your words were found, and I ate them. And your word was to me the joy and rejoicing of my heart (Jeremiah 15:16)

"Weeping may endure for a night, but joy comes in the morning" (Psalm 30:5)

As sure as the night falls, the sun also rises. Night is never the end, but marks the beginning of daylight. So too, as surely there is sorrow, joy is sure to follow. It is through pain, suffering and sorrow that we look to the One who is the source of all Comfort. We all know God works all things together for the good, to those who love God and are called according to His purpose. Most of us stop there, but as surely as verse 28 ends, verse 29 begins. What is the "good" that God works all things together for? Verse 29 tells us; it is to conform us into the image of His Son. A man once asked the Sculptor how he knows where to chip away at a block of marble or stone. He said he had an image in his mind and he merely chips away those things that don't conform to the image he has in mind. God also has an image in His mind and he uses those trials and tribulations to chip away those things in our lives that don't conform to the image of His Son. We are His workmanship. The Greek word workmanship is poiema, where we get our word, poem. We are His poem for all mankind to read.

"Now therefore, we are all present before God, to hear all the things commanded you by God." - Acts 10:33 To avoid distracting others please turn off cell phones before the service begins. Thank you.
